Carbon Sequestration Advisory Committee to meet

The Wyoming Carbon Sequestration Advisory Committee (CSAC) will hold a public meeting July 30 in Casper.

The meeting will be held in Ballroom A at the Parkway Plaza Hotel and Convention Center, 123 W. E St.

Beginning at 10 a.m. the CSAC will meet with Mike Walsh of the Chicago Climate Exchange to discuss rangeland climate criteria and ask questions about a new program that would allow Wyoming citizens to earn credits by sequestering carbon in their land.

That afternoon, there will be a public presentation at 1:30 p.m. This session is designed for producers, agriculture industry representatives and others interested in carbon sequestration. It will include an overview of the Chicago Climate Exchange as well as information about carbon offset trading and the rangeland carbon sequestration protocol. The meeting is expected to adjourn around 3:30 p.m.

The Carbon Sequestration Advisory Committee was established by the Wyoming State Legislature to explore the feasibility and opportunities for agriculture and other natural resource entities to benefit operationally as well as monetarily from the sequestering, or storing, of carbon.

More information about carbon sequestration can be obtained by visiting the CSAC website at www.wyomingcarbon.org.
